

Geographic Information System (GIS) is a powerful tool for the organization and analysis of spatial data.

Our experience dates to 1985, when the technology was first known as digital cartography and automated mapping.

With 25 years of experience, we have witnessed the industry's evolution, cycles, players, and trends shaping today's geospatial market and its future direction.